PART 2 · FROM THE CHAISER

A Note From Ally

ALLY MCSWEEN · CHASING UTOPIA · RACE DIRECTOR

Yes, I am THAT person. The one who started a turkey trot. And no, I am not sorry about it.

I have done a lot of races, and my favorite part has never been the finish line or the medal. It's the people. The way a small town can show up in force, holding up my ridiculous clothes in the dark. Pushing past the anxiety that builds before every race, no matter how many I've done. And then the moment it's over and I look around and see the ones cheering from the finish line, the ones ahead, and the ones stepping streets with me in the dark.

Moving to Utopia inspired the name, but Sir Thomas More wrote about a place called Utopia over two hundred years ago. It's also a perfect place that doesn't quite exist, which means you can't actually get lost trying to find it. Something to keep in mind if you become extremely turkey-drug this year.

That definition is what keeps us going. The pursuit. The chase. It's community, and it's even more community when it's a 5K on Thanksgiving morning.

I'm still new to this community, and I'm learning the traditions here can drag. I'm not here to change any of them. I just want to help you run them a little more easily. And maybe add a few new ones. Like a turkey burner.

My hope is that this becomes a tradition for my family and yours. The kind of morning your kids drag you out of bed for ten years from now. Run it, walk it, push a stroller, bring the dog, wear something ridiculous.

Thank you for showing up for the very first one. Let's make it a good one.

PART 6 · 2025 GRADUATING CHAMPION

Our Turkey Winner

Cowgarn, Natalie*

Thanksgiving dinner is officially handled. Get in touch with us so we can sort out logistics and pickup.

PART 7 · 5K AWARDS & CELEBRATION

Awards & Celebration

1ST AWARDS

Top Three Finishers

Trophy engraves the first, second, and third overall finishers in the 5K at 9:00 AM

BEST DRESSED

Best Dressed

Voted on by the crowd at the finish line. Whatever you've got. Commit to the bit.

The celebration is the best part.

Once you cross the finish line, the celebrations begins. The Mule line is not the end of the morning. It's where the morning gets good. Every finisher earned it, whether you raced for a podium spot or walked the mile with a stroller and a dog.

Stick around for celebratory drinks, music, and good vibes at Utopia Square. Alcoholic drinks are for ages 21 and older.

PART 9 · THE PERSONAL TOUCHES & CHEER

Cheer Squad

The people cheering matter just as much as the people racing. Here's how to catch your runners at every big moment. Have celebrations with them after.

See Them Off

Meet at Utopia Square for the 8:00 AM start. Grab a coffee at the start line and send them off loud.

Steady The Map

Look over the course map before Thursday and pick a spot where you'll see them two times.

Catch The Finish

Head back to the Square to welcome them home, then stick around for awards, celebrations, music, and good vibes.

PART 10 · RACE POLICIES

PART 11 · GIVING BACK

Giving Back

The parks, schools, and communities of the Hill Country rarely get the support they deserve from the people who live and play in them. That's the idea behind Chasing Utopia. Every race we put on is rooted in the place it started. Donations go directly back to the places that make Utopia, Utopia. Here's worth running through.

Lone Maples

Canyon trails and fairways, half one day hosted the Texas.

Garnet

We Fire River Conservancy, generations of people have grown up on.

Our School

Highlands Elementary, Utopia ISD, and the kids who go for this race to earn more.

Utopia

The town, the square, and the history people who make it home.

This first Turkey Burner is where it begins. Donations from this race help build the capital for the next one, and the one after that. Our goal is to give back more than we take in.
